This is an outstanding example of a traditional wood kitchen. The standard of design, workmanship and materials is extremely high and combine to provide an effective kitchen that is sympathetic to its environment and is the focal point of the dwelling.

Attard's Cabinetry continually strives to provide quality service and professional workmanship to all of the company's clients. This is achieved by implementing and maintaining non-compromising standards throughout all design and manufacturing processes. Keeping these functions in-house ensures that the company can be monitored every step of the way.

Attard's Cabinetry's customer service commences with the initial consultation and design stage and continues with the manufacturing of joinery at the company's factory, finishing with the professional installation at your home or office. Each process is completed by a trained employee of Attard's Cabinetry who has a personal commitment to you, the customer.

Michael Attard has been designing and manufacturing not only kitchens, but a wide array of cabinetry to fulfil clients' needs for more than 20 years. Michael's attention to detail is seen in every aspect of his workmanship.

Michael's designs are innovative while still maintaining practicality and are functional to work in or use. His kitchens have been judged as finalists in the Housing Industry Association's Kitchen of the Year awards in five different categories over the past two years, acknowledging the quality and design aspects of the joinery created by Attard's Cabinetry.
